The passport:
ambassador of identity

Security combined with art

Orell Füssli Security Printing the leading address for passport printing

Security is our business, and our prime objective is to supply products and solutions that can not be compromised. Passports are designed in accordance with our customers' specifications and International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) standards. To satisfy these criteria, expertise and experience are essential. Over a period of many decades, we have acquired in-depth know-how and familiarity with all technologies and methods involved in passport design and production.

For such documents, where security features and functions have to be combined with artistic design, Orell Füssli Security Printing Ltd is the leading address.

Passports a visiting card for the holder and the country

A passport is the holder's most personalised and most valuable identification document. At the same time it is a visiting card for the country that issued it. Thus it reflects both respect for the holder and the cultural heritage of the issuing country.

Not only does a passport prove an individual's identity; it is also indispensable for facilitating and regulating international travel. It is hence imperative that the passport be forgery- and tamper-proof.

Turn-key solutions to make your life easier

The development, production, individualisation and issuing of passports is a complex and demanding task. Certain basic preconditions have to be fulfilled and numerous aspects coordinated to successfully complete a project of this kind.

Orell Füssli Security Printing Ltd has the competence to provide the services you require in each of the various steps involved. If you wish, we can act as general contractors. From the initial design through production and delivery to your door, we can support you along the entire process chain or in selected phases of the process. Naturally, we can also provide a complete infrastructure for personalising passports, by supplying all necessary hardware and software plus appropriate training for personnel who will operate the system.

Your benefit

our experience

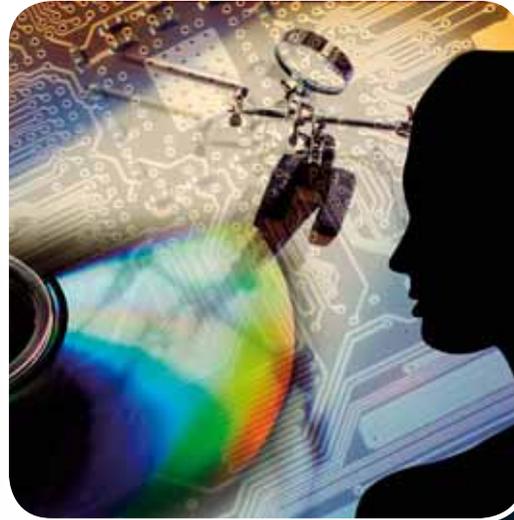

Experience is the indispensable basis of innovation. We have a long history of producing security and identification documents. They are our world, and over the years our highly qualified workforce has accumulated vast experience in this field. Thanks to our many contacts in the security industry and continuous investment in state-of-the-art technology, we can provide solutions that will enable you to include almost any security feature you wish in passports for your country.

Security during production and delivery of the passports is guaranteed by a sophisticated continuous production control system, the organisational set-up and the process design.

Profit from the latest developments

to obtain a state-of-the-art passport

In a globalised world, passports have to satisfy increasingly stringent criteria. Enhanced functionality is becoming the standard required by a growing number of countries. In order to fulfil these expectations, Orell Füssli Security Printing Ltd constantly monitors new developments and adopts innovative solutions. One example is the e-passport, which has a built-in chip on which biometric data of the passport holder are stored. Security is of course ensured by restriction of access to the personal data on the chip.
